DEVELOPMENTS IN WORLD COTTON TRADE

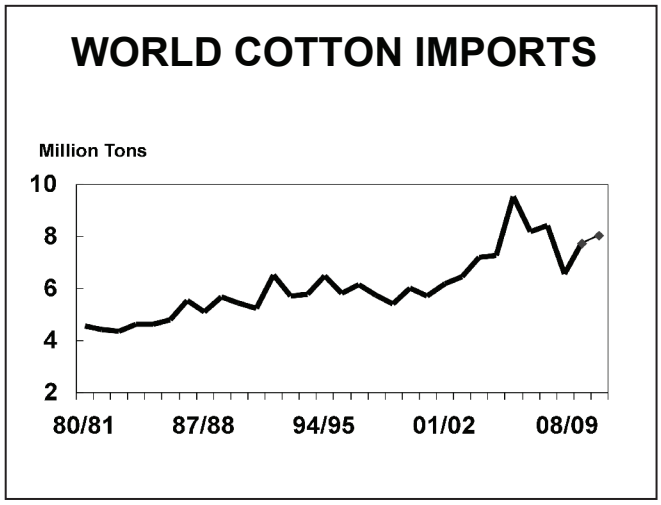

World cotton imports rebounded by 18% to 7.7 million tons in 2009/10, driven by economic recovery and increased imports by China, Turkey, Bangladesh and Vietnam. World cotton trade fell by 22% to 6.6 million tons in 2008/09, a direct result of the sharp drop in mill use during the global economic crisis. 2008/09 saw the lowest imports since 2002/03 and the sharpest percent of decline since the Second World War. It is projected that world imports will continue rising in 2010/11 to 8 million tons. Chinese imports are forecast to grow by 22% to 2.8 million tons. Exports from the United States are projected up by 19% to 3.2 million tons in 2010/11. World cotton trade reached a record of 9.5 million tons in 2005/06.

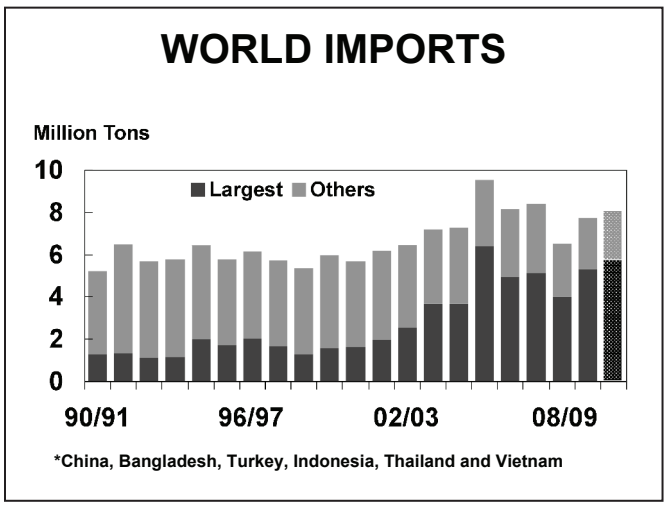

China, Bangladesh, Turkey, Indonesia, Thailand and Vietnam were the largest cotton importers accounting for 69% of the world total in 2009/10 and accounted for the largest share of the increase in imports. World cotton imports were at 5.4 million tons in 1998/99, and the share of these countries was at 24%. In 2010/11, the share of these countries is expected to reach 71%. It is projected that in 2010/11, China will account for most of the increase in imports, while other major importers are expected to experience moderate rates of growth in imports.

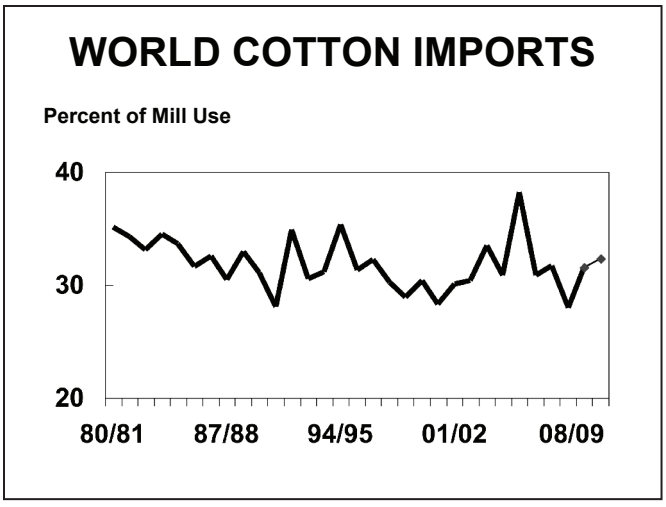

Projected increases in production during 2010/11 could result in larger exports from USA, Uzbekistan, Brazil, CFA zone countries and Australia. India will remain the second largest exporter in 2010/11. However Indian exports will be smaller than in 2009/10, due to a smaller supply.

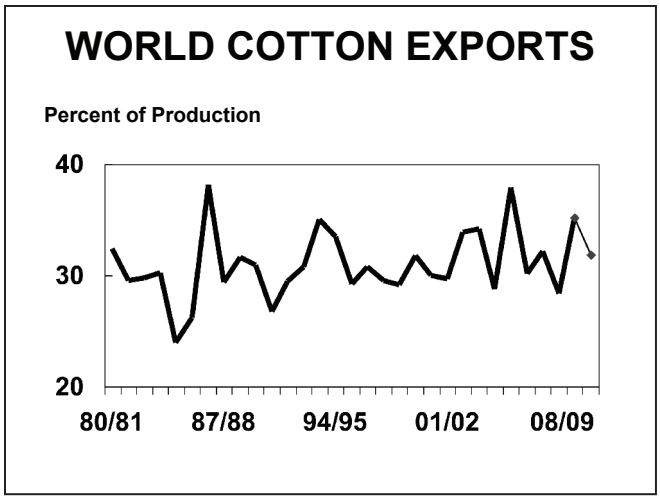

World imports as a share of world cotton mill use averaged 31% between 1998/99 and 2008/09, reaching a record of 38% in 2005/06 and declining to 28% in 2008/09, as stocks rose. Rising trade and declining stocks led the imports/mill use ratio to rise to 31% during 2009/10; the ratio is projected at 32% in 2010/11. World exports as a share of world cotton production averaged 31.5% between 1998/99 and 2008/09, also reaching a record of 38% in 2005/06 and declining to 28% in 2008/09. The export/production ratio rose to 35% during 2009/10, reflecting a gap between mill use and production; the ratio is projected at 32% in 2010/11, as production is expected to rise. The shares of trade to production and mill use have fluctuated since 1980/81 in a range between 27 and 38 percent, with a rare spike experienced in 2005/06.

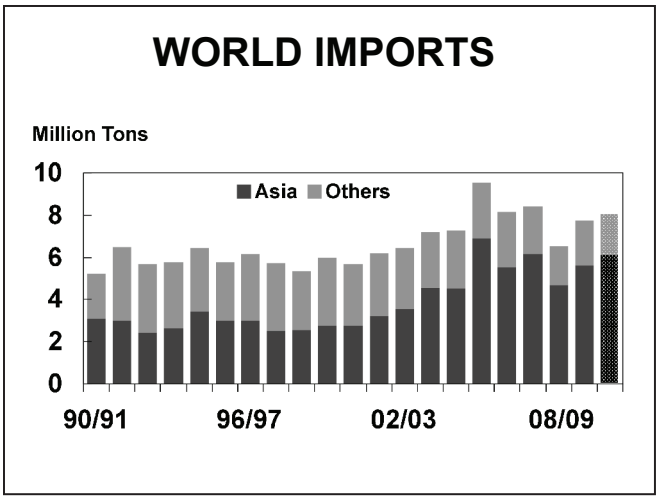

Substantial changes in cotton trade flows occurred during the past decade. Industrial countries (North America, Western Europe, Australia and Japan) accounted for 28% of world imports and 36% of world exports in 1998/99. The decline in mill use in industrial countries, and the rapid expansion in Asia, led to a major shift in the destination of world imports. In 2009/10, industrial countries accounted for 3% of world cotton imports and 43% of world exports. The share of industrial countries in world imports is likely to decline during 2010/11, but the share in world exports is projected to increase to 47% due to expected larger shipments from USA.

Asia became the primary destination for cotton shipments during the past decade. In 1998/99, Asia accounted for 58% of world mill use, 47% of world imports and 4% of world exports. In 2009/10, Asia accounted for 79% of world mill use, 73% of world imports and 23% of world exports. It is projected that in 2010/11, Asia's share of world mill use will reach 80% and the share in world imports could reach 76%, while Asia's share of exports is projected to decline to 19%. In contrast, Africa's share of world mill use and exports declined during the last decade. In 1998/99, Africa accounted for 3% of world imports and consumption and 23% of world exports. It is projected that in 2010/11, Africa will account for 2% of world mill use, 3% of imports and 12% of world exports.

South America accounted for 8% of world imports and 6% of world exports in 1998/99 and is projected to account for just 3% of world imports and 7% of world exports in 2010/11. Compared with 1998/99, cotton production in South America is projected to almost double in 2010/11, as a result of the expansion in Brazil that started in 2003/04. During the past decade, mill use in South America rose by a quarter.

Imports by China Push World Trade Higher

Imports by China increased increase by an estimated 53% during 2009/10 reaching 2.3 million tons as a result of strong recovery in mill use. A season earlier, the world economic crisis led to a sharp reduction in cotton mill use in China resulting in larger stocks and a sharp decline in imports. Mill use in China is projected to continue recovering in 2010/11, but at a lower rate of 2%. However, production is projected to remain stable at 7 million tons. As a result, imports by China are projected to increase by a half million tons reaching 2.8 million tons. As of mid-August 2010, 3.6 million tons of import quotas were issued by the Chinese government for calendar 2010, and about 2 million tons of the quotas remain unused. In addition, a quota for imports of about 900,000 tons stipulated by the WTO agreement should be released at the start of 2011. In 2010/11, China is projected to account for 35% of world imports. China imported a record 4.2 million tons in 2005/06, accounting for 44% of world imports.

In order to support producer prices In 2008/09, a Chinese government agency, the China National Cotton Reserves Corporation (CNCRC), purchased 2.724 million tons of cotton, or a third of 2008/09 production. The Chinese government did not use the sliding-scale cotton import quotas in 2009, but rather released 2.6 million tons of state reserves for sale to domestic mills. An additional 600,000 tons of state reserves were released during the first half of 2010.

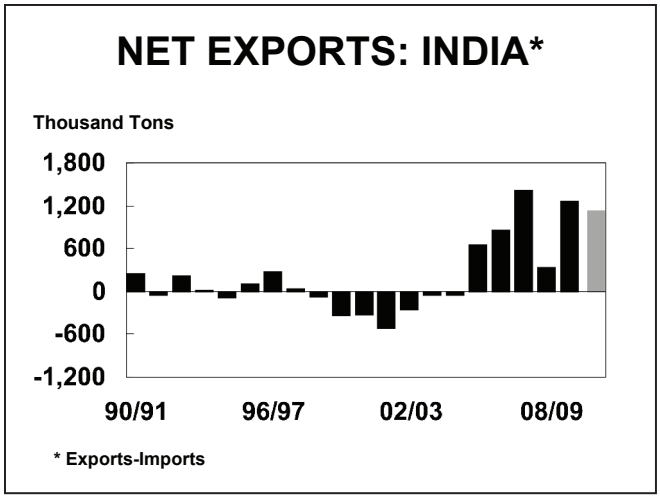

In 2009/10, China imported an estimated 1 million tons from the USA (43% of China's total imports), about the same as in 2008/09. India was the second largest supplier of cotton to China during 2009/10, accounting for 800,000 tons (35%) of Chinese imports, sharply higher than during 2008/09. Uzbekistan and African countries were significant suppliers of cotton to China in 2009/10.

Indian Exports Rebound

Exports by India rebounded during 2009/10 to an estimated 1.4 million tons, making India the world's second largest exporter again. India emerged as one of the largest cotton exporters in 2005/06, and by 2007/08 India was the second largest exporter with shipments reaching a record 1.5 million tons (18% of world exports). Reduced import demand resulting from the world economic crisis and government intervention with direct purchases of cotton led to a sharp decline in exports from India in 2008/09 to an estimated 515,000 tons.

In April 2010, the Indian government announced the suspension of cotton export registrations and requested that cotton exports already registered, but not yet shipped, be revalidated, with a monthly cap on revalidations to be determined. This decision was taken in order to ensure a "reasonable carryover stock in the country" at the end of 2009/10. The Cotlook A Index jumped to over 90 cents per pound in the last part of April 2010.

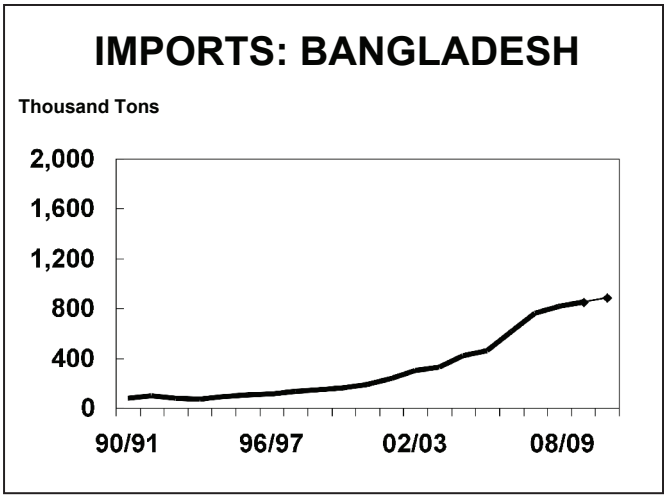

At the end of May 2010, the Indian government allowed cotton exports under license. It became mandatory for exporters to receive licenses from the government. Cotton exports became subjected to a flat rate duty of 2500 rupees per ton (2.4 cents per pound) on all varieties.

In India, favorable growing conditions, a low incidence of pests and diseases, increased planting of new higher yielding varieties and Bt cotton, improved crop management practices, increased cotton demand and relatively higher market prices resulted in improved yields, quality and increased area during the past several seasons.

Indian cotton production is projected to reach a record of 5.5 million tons in 2010/11. Indian exports are projected at 1.2 million tons in 2010/11, as domestic demand is projected to continue growing. More than half of Indian exports in 2009/10 were directed to China. Bangladesh, Pakistan, and East Asia are other major destinations for Indian cotton. India is expected to remain an importer of about 130,000 tons of mostly extra-fine and fine cotton varieties from the USA and Egypt in 2010/11.

Bangladesh Becomes the World's Second Largest Importer

Imports by Bangladesh are projected to increase by 4% in 2010/11 to reach 880,000 tons, the second largest imports after China. The robust expansion of weaving and spinning in Bangladesh during the past several years continued during 2009/10 as new spinning capacities were commissioned. In 2009/10, cotton imports by Bangladesh rose by 4% to an estimated 850,000 tons, accounting for 11% of world trade. About 50% of imports in 2009/10 originated from Uzbekistan, 20% from India, and 10% from the USA. Other Central Asian countries and Africa account for most of the rest of Bangladesh imports. Uzbek cotton has the largest market share in Bangladesh because of price competitiveness, short delivery times, and quality characteristics preferred by spinners. However, cotton from Turkmenistan and the USA gained market share during the past several seasons.

Turkey Remains Large Importer

Cotton production in Turkey is projected to increase in 2010/11 reaching 500,000 tons and leaving a gap with cotton demand of 750,000 tons. Imports of 750,000 tons are projected in 2010/11, accounting for 9% of world imports and the third largest in the world. Cotton production declined during the past six seasons as a result of shifts in area to competing crops and appreciation of the Turkish lira in relation to the U.S. dollar. Higher cotton prices are expected to arrest the trend during 2010/11, while cotton mill use is expected to stabilize. Turkey will continue to depend on imports of cotton. In 2009/10, Turkey imported 870,000 tons, with the USA remaining the largest supplier, accounting for 50%, while 20% were imported from Greece, and most of the rest from Central Asia and Syria. The high share of U.S. cotton in Turkish imports is explained by the importance of GSM-102 credit guarantees, actively used by Turkish buyers. Cotton Council International (CCI) and Cotton Incorporated (CI) of the USA run active marketing and promotional campaigns in Turkey.

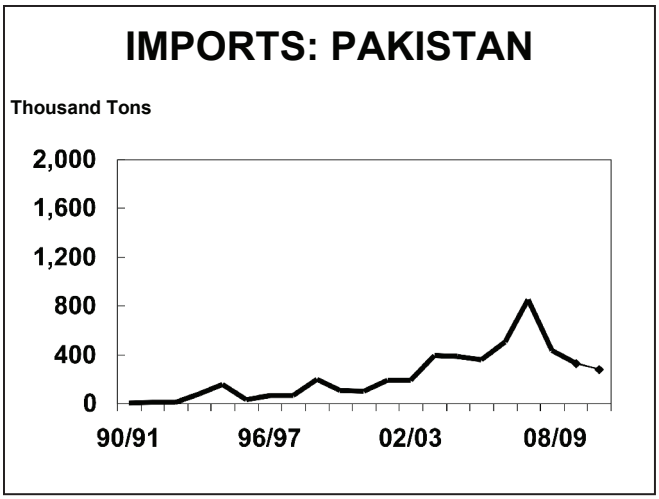

Mill Use in Vietnam Expands

The textile industry in Vietnam continues to expand rapidly causing import demand for cotton to grow significantly. It is projected that imports by Vietnam could increase by 40% during 2010/11 to reach 370,000 tons. These imports place Vietnam among the world's top importers of cotton such as Indonesia and Thailand. USA supplies about 50% of imports by Vietnam, while India and African countries supply most of the rest.

Imports by Pakistan Could Decline

Pakistan remains dependant on imports. Pakistan is importing substantial quantities of extra-fine and fine cotton for higher count yarns. Cotton consumption in Pakistan has expanded since 1998/99 in response to export-driven demand for textiles. In 2010/11, cotton mill use in Pakistan is projected to stabilize at 2.4 million tons, after declines caused by the economic crisis and shortages of power. During 2010/11, cotton production in Pakistan is projected to rise to 2.2 million tons, but will still be lower than projected mill use. Imports by Pakistan could decline in 2010/11 by 15% to 250,000 tons. India, USA, Brazil, and Uzbekistan are the major suppliers of cotton to Pakistan. Pakistan remains one of the largest buyers of extra-fine cotton from the USA and Egypt.

Exports from the USA Rising Sharply

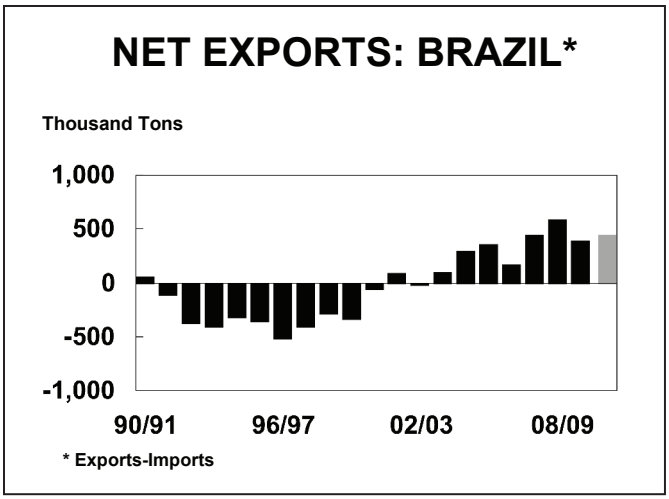

U.S. cotton production is projected to increase by more than 50% during 2010/11 to 4.1 million tons after four seasons of declines. As a result of rising supplies and increased import demand, U.S. exports are projected to increase by 18% to 3.2 million tons, accounting for 40% of world exports. Declining production during the past several seasons with small reductions in exports led to declines in stocks in the USA. As a result, the stocks to use ratio (stocks to exports plus mill use) declined from a high level of 55% in 2007/08 to an estimated 18% in 2009/10. In 2009/10, U.S. exports accounted for 35% of world exports. It is estimated that China accounted for 30% of U.S. shipments during 2009/10. Other countries in Asia also accounted for 33% of U.S. exports in 2009/10. Large shipments were made to Indonesia, Thailand, Taiwan, Pakistan, Bangladesh, Vietnam and Korea. Turkey was the second largest destination for U.S. cotton in 2009/10, accounting for 20% of exports, while Mexico remained the third largest destination during the past season, accounting for about 12% of U.S. shipments.

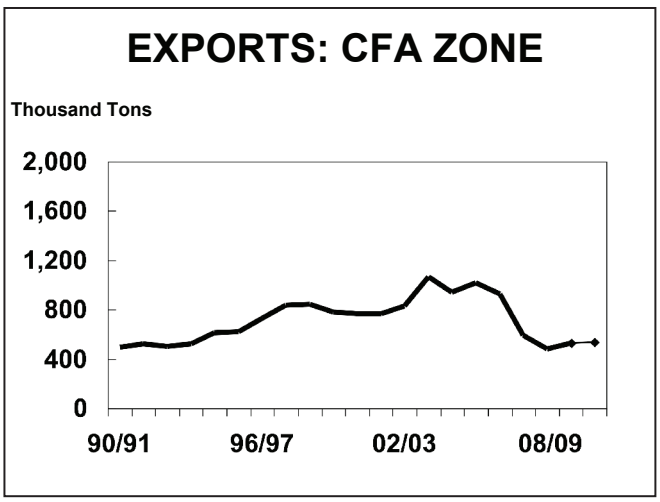

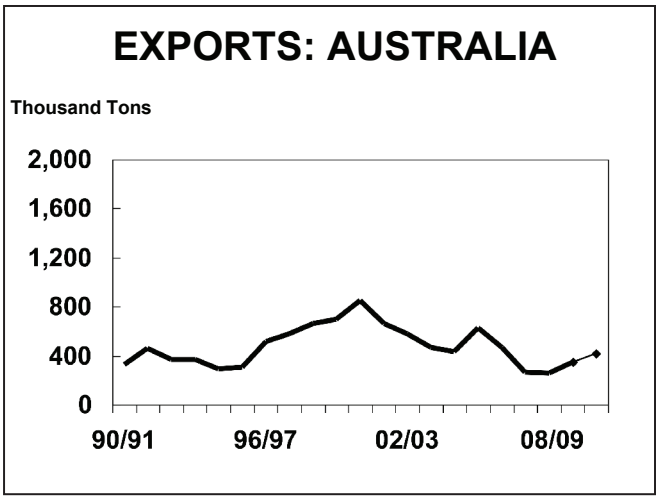

Brazilian Exports are Expected to Rebound

Brazilian cotton production declined by almost a quarter during 2008/09, as a result of tight credit to finance inputs, and competition for area with other commodities, especially soybeans. This led to a decline in cotton exports during 2009/10 to 425,000 tons down from a record 600,000 exported during the previous season. Production in Brazil started to rebound during 2009/10 and is projected to grow in 2010/11. As a result, exports in 2010/11 are projected to grow to 470,000 tons, accounting for 6% of world exports, making Brazil the world's fourth largest exporter after the USA, India and Uzbekistan. During the past several seasons, the government of Brazil provided marketing assistance to producers improving competitiveness of Brazilian cotton, both in domestic and international markets. Indonesia, Pakistan and Korea are major buyers of Brazilian cotton. China accounts for 10% of Brazilian exports.

Exports from the CFA Zone and Australia Increase

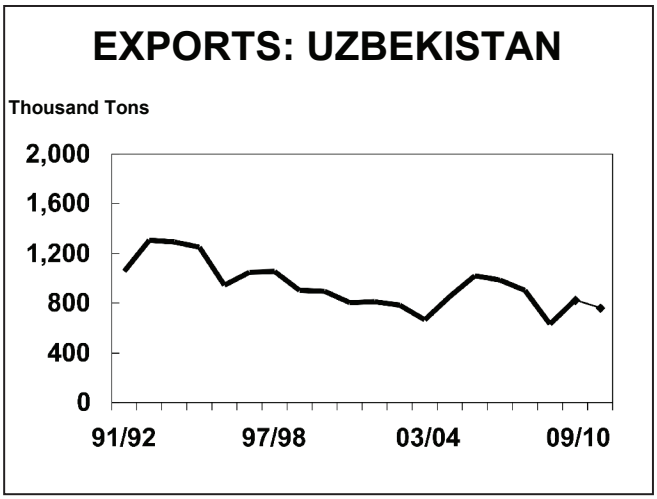

CFA zone cotton production is projected to rebound by 18% during 2010/11 to 600,000 tons as a result of higher prices received by farmers during 2009/10. CFA zone production declined steadily after reaching a record of 1.1 million tons in 2004/05, mostly because of the appreciation of the CFA franc during the period, which is pegged to the euro, leading to a decline in prices received by producers. In 2009/10, production in the CFA zone fell to an estimated 500,000 tons, the lowest in two decades. As the bulk of the CFA zone production is exported, the decline in production was directly reflected in exports. In 20010/11, exports from the CFA zone are projected at 540,000 tons. China became the largest destination for exports from the CFA zone during the past several seasons, accounting for about 40% of all shipments. Other countries in East Asia remain important destinations for West African cotton.

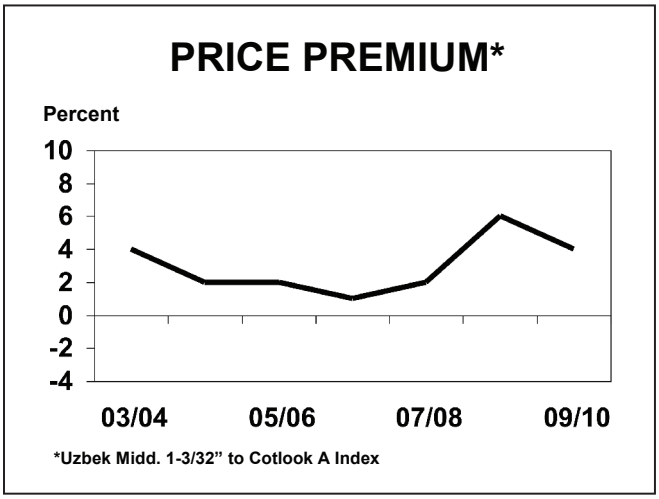

Production and exports are recovering in Australia after several years of drought resulted in sharp declines in production and exports. Improved water supply and weather are leading to larger production in 2009/10 and projected 33% growth in 2010/11 to 520,000 tons. Exports from Australia are projected to increase to 400,000 tons in 2010/11 (+10%). China accounts for 60% of exports from Australia. Indonesia and other countries in East Asia are other major destinations for Australian cotton.

Exports from Uzbekistan are Projected to Rebound

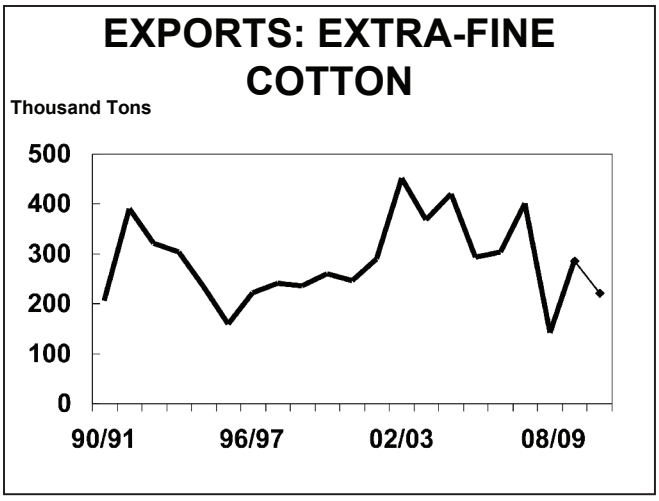

In Uzbekistan, production declined during 2009/10, however exports rose to an estimated 820,000 tons (+30%), due to large stocks from the previous season. In 2010/11, production is projected to exceed 1 million tons, and exports are estimated at 760,000 tons. Bangladesh, China and Russia are major destinations for cotton from Uzbekistan.

Uzbek cotton is traditionally quoted at a premium to the Cotlook A Index. Between 2003/04 and 2009/10, the premium averaged 3%. In 2003/04 the premium was 4% and gradually declined to 1% by 2006/07. During this period, cotton production in Uzbekistan climbed from 900,000 tons to 1.2 million tons. In 2007/08, the premium for Uzbek cotton rose to 2% and jumped to 6% in 2008/09. During 2009/10, the premium averaged 4%, staying above long-term average. Between 2007/08 and 2009/10, cotton production in Uzbekistan declined from 1.2 million tons to 850,000 tons. The variability in the premium for Uzbek cotton seems to be explained by changes in its supply.

Smaller World Extra-fine Supplies Limit Exports in 2010/11

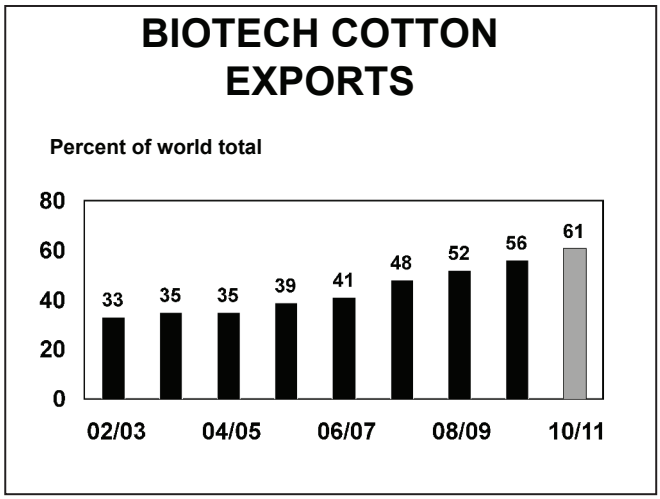

World extra-fine cotton production is projected to grow by 20% to 504,000 tons during 2010/11 due to higher prices received in 2009/10. Most of the increase will be accounted for by Egypt, USA and China. Production is also expected to grow in Sudan, India and Uzbekistan. Despite the projected increase in world production, supplies of extra-fine cotton are declining in 2010/11 as a result of large exports, estimated at 290,000 tons in 2009/10 and, as a consequence, a very low level of beginning stocks in 2010/11. Reduced supplies are expected to limit consumption and exports during 2010/11. Exports of extra-fine cotton are projected to decline by 22% to 220,000 tons in 2010/11. The low stock level in the USA could result in U.S. Pima exports declining the most, by 35%, to less than 100,000 tons in 2010/11. Larger production in Egypt and Sudan could allow exports to remain stable during 2010/11 at 75,000 tons and 12,000 tons, accordingly. Exports of extra-fine cotton by Central Asia could decline, and exports could remain unchanged from Israel.

Share of Biotech Cotton in Trade is Rising

Biotech cotton production and trade continue to expand. Based on officially reported data, biotech cotton accounted for 20% of world area, 28% of world production and 33% of world exports in 2002/03. In 2009/10, it is estimated that biotech cotton accounted for 60% of world production and 56% of exports. It is projected that biotech cotton will account for 65% of world production and 61% of world exports in 2010/11. The increase is accounted for mostly by USA and India. World exports of biotech cotton are estimated based on production shares in exporting countries.The largest exporters of biotech cotton are the USA, India and Australia.

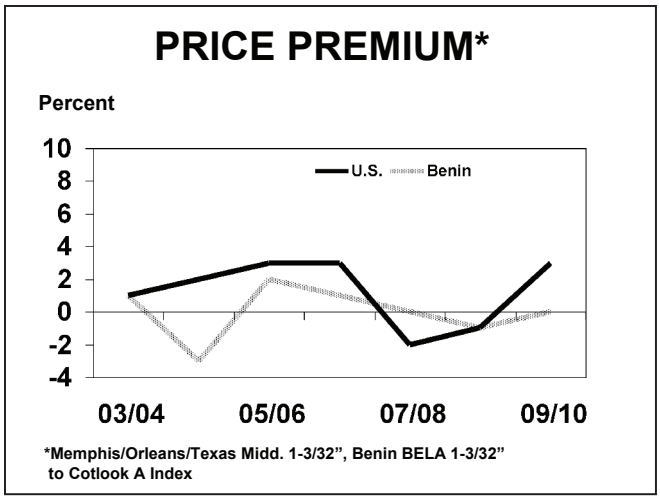

It is evident that the share of biotech cotton in textiles traded in all markets is rising and is nearing two-thirds of production. There are no price differentials for biotech and non-biotech cotton fiber or textiles containing biotech cotton. There is no evidence of rejection or price discrimination against biotech cotton by any segment of the market or region. In practice, markets do not identify biotech cotton content, but rather evaluate cotton properties based on quality characteristics.

For example, a comparison of long-term price ratios of medium grades of U.S. Memphis/Orleans/Texas and Benin Bela quotes to the Cotlook A Index indicates that most of the time, U.S. cotton (biotech) enjoys an equal or higher premium to the A Index compared with cotton from Benin (non-biotech). Although other factors, such as contamination or a lack of HVI data may limit the premium for Benin cotton, U.S. cotton is not sold at a discount. It also seems that the introduction of biotech cotton in Burkina Faso in 2008/09 did not lead to reduce premiums. Premium paid for Indian cotton rose during the past two seasons, even though about 80% of Indian cotton is biotech.

* The top number in each row equals the quantity of raw cotton exporters report having shipped to each importer. The bottom number in each row equals the quantity importers report having received from each exporter. For example, in 1984/85, Argentina reports exports to China (Taiwan) of 20,730 tons; China (Taiwan) reports imports from Argentina of 19,740 tons. Imports may differ from exports for a given season because of time spent in transit, changes in the weight of cotton during shipment, transhipment through third countries and errors in record keeping.

1/ Data on exports by Paraguay and Zimbabwe during 1984/85 are not available.

*The top number in each row equals the quantity of raw cotton exporters report having shipped to each importer. The bottom number in each row equals the quantity importers report having received from each exporter. For example, in 1988/89, Argentina reports exports to China (Taiwan) of 13,640 tons; China (Taiwan) reports imports from Argentina of 8,880 tons. Imports may differ from exports in a given season because of time spent in transit, changes in the weight of cotton during shipment, transhipment through third countries and errors in record keeping.

* The top number in each row equals the quantity of raw cotton exporters report having shipped to each importer. The bottom number in each row equals the quantity importers report having received from each exporter. For example, in 1993/94, Australia reports exports to Japan of 127,530tons; Japan reports imports from Australia of 122,000 tons. Imports may differ from exports in a given season because of time spent in transit, changes in the weight of cotton during shipment, transhipment through third countries and errors in record keeping.

* The top number in each row equals the quantity of raw cotton exporters report having shipped to each importer. The bottom number in each row equals the quantity importers report having received from each exporter. For example, in 1997/98, Australia reports exports to Japan of 102,750 tons; Japan reports imports from Australia of 98,190 tons. Imports may differ from exports in a given season because of time spent in transit, changes in the weight of cotton during shipment, transhipment through third countries and errors in record keeping.

* The top number in each row equals the quantity of raw cotton exporters report having shipped to each importer. The bottom number in each row equals the quantity importers report having received from each exporter. For example, in 1998/99, Australia reports exports to Japan of 132,890 tons; Japan reports imports from Australia of 128,040 tons. Imports may differ from exports in a given season because of time spent in transit, changes in the weight of cotton during shipment, transhipment through third countries and errors in record keeping.

* The top number in each row equals the quantity of raw cotton exporters report having shipped to each importer. The bottom number in each row equals the quantity importers report having received from each exporter. For example, in 2003/04, Australia reports exports to Japan of 52,290 tons; Japan reports imports from Australia of 49,080 tons. Imports may differ from exports in a given season because of time spent in transit, changes in the weight of cotton during shipment, transhipment through third countries and errors in record keeping.

* The top number in each row equals the quantity of raw cotton exporters report having shipped to each importer. The bottom number in each row equals the quantity importers report having received from each exporter. For example, in 2008/09, Australia reports exports to Japan of 19,700 tons; Japan reports imports from Australia of 19,900 tons. Imports may differ from exports in a given season because of time spent in transit, changes in the weight of cotton during shipment, transhipment through third countries and errors in record keeping.
