DEVELOPMENTS IN WORLD COTTON TRADE

World cotton trade remained relatively stable during the past three seasons, hovering around 8 million tons. During 2011/12 and 2012/13, world trade reached records above 10 million tons, boosted by the Chinese policy of stockpiling domestically produced cotton and relying on substantial imports of lower-priced foreign growths. The end of cotton stockpiling in China led to a decline in Chinese imports from record levels, while slow growth in world mill use and large stocks in China are likely to translate into weak expansion in world trade in the near future.

World cotton imports are projected to remain at about 8 million tons in 2017/18. Imports by China in 2017/18 are expected to remain stable and close to lowest levels since 2002/03. Bangladesh, Vietnam, China, Indonesia, Turkey, Pakistan and Thailand will remain the world's largest importers in 2017/18, accounting for 77% of world imports.

USA, Francophone Africa, India, Brazil, Australia and Uzbekistan will remain the largest exporters during 2017/18, accounting for 86% of world exports. Exports from USA, India, and Uzbekistan are projected to decline moderately and will be offset by increased exports from, Francophone Africa, Brazil and Australia.

World imports as a share of cotton mill use averaged 32% during the ten seasons between 2001/02 and 2010/11. In 2011/12, the share rose to a record 44% and stayed above the long-term average during the next two years because of record imports by China. The share declined to an estimated 32% during 2016/17 and is projected to remain unchanged in 2017/18. World exports as a share of world cotton production also averaged 32% between 2001/02 and 2010/11, and also stayed above the long-term average during the next three seasons, reaching 37% in 2012/13. The share declined to 32% during 2016/17 and is projected unchanged in 2016/17. The lowest shares of trade to production and mill use since 1990/91 were recorded in 2008/09, at 28%.

Substantial changes in cotton trade flows have occurred during the past fifteen years. The decline in mill use in developed economies and the rapid expansion of the spinning industry in Asia has led to a major shift in the destination of world exports.

Bangladesh is the Largest Importer

It is projected that Bangladesh will remain the largest importer of cotton. Imports by Bangladesh are projected to increase by 9%, reaching 1.55 million tons in 2017/18 and accounting for 19% of world imports. Mill use in Bangladesh continues to grow, supported by the renewed expansion of textile exports and advancing development of the supply chain. India recently became the largest supplier of cotton to Bangladesh, as the share of Uzbekistan in Bangladesh imports is declining. Other Central Asian countries, Africa and Australia supply most of the rest of Bangladeshi imports. Indian and Uzbek growths have the largest market share in Bangladesh because of price competitiveness, short delivery times, and quality characteristics preferred by spinners.

Asia became the primary destination for cotton shipments during the past 15 years. In 1998/99, Asia accounted for 58% of world mill use, 47% of world imports and 4% of world exports. In 2017/18, Asia is projected to account for 80% of world mill use, 80% of world imports and 13% of world exports.

Textile Industry Expansion in Vietnam Continues

The textile industry in Vietnam has attracted substantial investments, including spinning, weaving, and knitting, dyeing and finishing. Cotton mill use in Vietnam continues to show robust growth, and imports are projected to increase by 11% during 2017/18 to 1.34 million tons. Major textile industry growth factors were the granting of most favored nation (MFN) status by the USA in 2001 and the accession of Vietnam to the World Trade Organization in 2007. The government of Vietnam provides sizeable incentives for foreign investments in textile production. Since 2000, spinning capacity in Vietnam has tripled. Strong demand for cotton yarn from China and Turkey is another factor causing imports of cotton by Vietnam to grow during recent seasons. Vietnam is the world's second largest importer after Bangladesh and will account for 15% of world imports in 2017/18. USA supplies about 45% of Vietnamese imports, while India, Australia, Brazil, and African countries provide most of the rest.

Imports by China will Remain Limited

During the past three seasons China restricted imports by limiting the release of import quotas and releasing cotton from the government reserve to mills. Under the terms of its accession agreement to the WTO, China is obliged to establish a tariff-rate-quota (TRQ). The in-quota tariff is 1% for the first 894,000 tons of imports each calendar year. Additional quotas can carry a tariff of 1%, or be subject to a sliding scale of between 5% and 40%. The purpose of the sliding scale is to ensure that the effective cost of imported cotton exceeds international market prices and thus boosts prices paid to farmers in China. In 2016/17, only the obligatory (TRQ) import quota was issued by China. As a result, imports by China remained close to 1 million tons during 2016/17. During 2016/17, close to 2.9 million tons of cotton were sold from the government reserve to mills in China.

In the three seasons prior to 2014/15, China implemented a system of minimum support prices by directly purchasing cotton from producers and stockpiling it in the government strategic reserve. During this period, the Chinese government purchased for its reserves a total of 16 million tons, most of which was later sold to spinning mills. The size of the reserve at the end of

IMPORTS: CHINA

Million Tons

2016/17 was estimated at 6.6 million tons, accounting for 82% of mill use by China and 35% of world stocks. While most of the cotton produced domestically was acquired by the government and has been stored in the national strategic reserves during the three seasons of implementation of this policy, large imports became necessary and boosted world trade to record levels. During the three seasons of 2011/12, 2012/13 and 2013/14, China imported 12.8 million tons of cotton.

During 2017/18, China is expected to continue to restrict imports to the lowest possible level and to release more cotton from the reserve. The projected release of the reserves to domestic mills will reduce the need for imports and limit growth in world trade. China is forecast to import about 1.1 million tons during 2017/18 and is expected to remain the third largest importer (behind Bangladesh and Vietnam), while accounting for 14% of world imports.

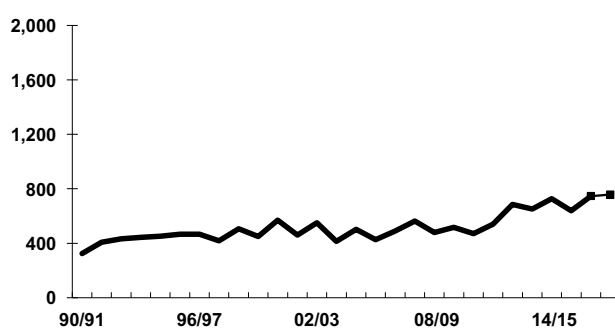

In 2016/17, USA was the largest supplier of cotton to China, while Australia and India were the next two largest sources. Uzbekistan, Brazil and West Africa are responsible for most of the remaining volume.

Cotton Mill Use in Indonesia is Rising

Cotton mill use in Indonesia is projected to continue recovering during 2017/18 as spinning mills are running at a higher capacity and some gain of market share by cotton from polyester is expected. Imports by Indonesia are projected to increase by about 2% during 2017/18 reaching 760,000 tons, a gain of 100,000 tons in two seasons. Indonesia is projected to account for 9.5% of world imports and is the fourth largest cotton importer in the world. Indonesia is a large exporter of cotton yarn to China. In 2016/17, the USA, Brazil, Australia, India, Greece and Africa were the major suppliers of cotton to Indonesia.

IMPORTS: INDONESIA

Thousand Tons

Imports by Turkey Remain Large

Cotton production in Turkey is projected to increase by 13% during 2017/18, however the domestic spinning industry remains dependent on imports for about half of its mill use. In 2017/18, cotton imports by Turkey are projected to remain large at about 710,000 tons, equivalent to 9% of world trade and the fifth largest after Bangladesh, Vietnam, China and Indonesia. The textile and garment industries remain key components of the Turkish economy and account for 8% of the country's GDP and 18% of exports. Turkey is the second largest textile exporter to the EU after China and is the fourth largest consumer of cotton after India, China and Pakistan. Starting in April 2016, U.S. cotton is subject to a 3% antidumping duty in Turkey. Despite the duty, about 45% of Turkish imports in 2016/17 originated in USA, while the balance came from Turkmenistan, Brazil, Greece, Syria, Burkina Faso, and Azerbaijan. The high share of US cotton in Turkish imports is explained by the importance of GSM-102 credit guarantees, actively used by Turkish buyers. Long-term credit (up to 18 months) and competitive credit terms fit well with Turkish banks and importers. Cotton Council International of USA runs an active marketing and promotional campaign in Turkey.

Imports by Pakistan Decline

Production in Pakistan is projected to recover by 17%, to 2 million tons during 2017/18 after deep declines during the past two seasons, when farmers shifted to corn and sugarcane, where possible, for better returns. Production also suffered setbacks in recent seasons because of widespread damage caused by the leaf curl virus disease and insects. Mill use in Pakistan is projected to increase by 4% during 2017/18, exceeding 2.2 million tons. As a result of increasing production, imports of cotton by Pakistan are projected to decline by 27% to an estimated 390,000 tons. In addition, large demand for cotton yarn, especially from China, and increasing demand for textiles as a result of the granting of duty free status for textile exports of Pakistan to Europe under the Generalized System of Preferences (GSP) supports cotton mill use in Pakistan. Imports by Pakistan will account for 5% of world imports in 2017/18. Major sources of imports by Pakistan are India, USA, Afghanistan, Brazil, and Central Asia.

Imports by Thailand is Recovering

In 2017/18, imports of cotton by Thailand are projected to increase by 6% to 270,000 tons, accounting for 3% of world trade. The textile industry in Thailand started to recover during 2012/13, supported by economic growth and increased demand for textile exports, especially cotton yarn exports to China. However, during the past two seasons cotton mill use and imports suffered some setback due to increased competition from cheaper cotton yarn from Vietnam and India, resulting in larger inventories of cotton yarn. However, projected economic recovery and improving competitiveness of spinning mills in Thailand could lead to higher demand and imports of cotton. The USA, Australia, Brazil, India and West Africa were the largest suppliers of cotton to Thailand in 2016/17.

Exports from the USA are Projected to Remain High

During 2016/17, US exports rose by 63% to more than 3.2 million tons as a result of a significant increase in US cotton production. US cotton production is projected to grow further during 2017/18, and the USA will remain the largest exporter of cotton, accounting for 39% of world exports (unchanged from 2026/17). US cotton is competitively priced and forward sales at the beginning of 2017/18 were well ahead of commitments made for 2016/17 at the same stage of the season. Vietnam remained the largest destination for U.S. cotton in 2016/17, accounting for 20% of exports, ahead of China, which accounted for 15% of US exports. Turkey accounted for about 12%, while Indonesia was the fourth largest importer of US cotton and accounted for 10% of US shipments during 2016/17. Large shipments were made to India, Mexico, Pakistan, Bangladesh Korea, Thailand and Taiwan.

CFA Zone Exports Rise

CFA Zone cotton production is projected to rise in 2017/18 and to reach close to 1.2 million tons, possibly the largest volume on record, due to relatively high prices received by farmers. Increased production will provide a historically high amount available for export. In 2017/18, exports from the CFA zone are projected to increase by 5%, exceeding 1 million tons and accounting for 13% of world exports. East Asian destinations have become the most important in the composition of the CFA zone exports, replacing China due to reduced imports by this country in recent seasons.

Indian Exports Set to Decline

Both production and mill use of cotton are expected to increase during 2017/18. However domestic prices in India remain high, making exports less competitive. Exports by India are projected to decline by 16% in 2017/18 to 930,000 tons and account for 12% of world exports. India emerged as one of the largest cotton exporters in 2005/06, as a result of increased domestic production. Favorable growing conditions, low incidence of pests and diseases, increased planting of new, higher-yielding varieties and biotech cotton led to higher output. Improved crop management practices, increased cotton demand and relatively high market prices resulted in improved yields, better quality and increased area during the past several seasons. In 2011/12, India exported 2.4 million tons, accounting for 24% of world exports.

In 2016/17, Bangladesh was the largest destination for Indian cotton accounting for an estimated 40% of Indian exports, while China accounted for 16%. Pakistan accounted for 15% and Vietnam for about 13% of Indian exports. East Asian markets are also important destinations for India. India imports extra-fine and fine cotton varieties from USA, Egypt and West Africa, as well as some upland varieties based on price considerations.

EXPORTS: INDIA

Thousand Tons

For 2017/18, imports by India are projected to decline by 30% to 330,000 tons, due to increased production.

Exports from Australia Rebound

Cotton production in Australia is expected to expand 4% during 2017/18. This will be the second consecutive season of increase because of improved water availability and better competitiveness in relation to other crops. Exports from Australia in 2017/18 are expected to rise by 3% to 780,000 tons, and Australia is projected to be the fourth largest exporter, accounting for 10% of world trade. Australian exports reached a record of 1.35 million tons in 2012/13 as a result of two years of abundant rainfall and higher production. China accounted for an estimated 25% of exports from Australia in 2016/17, while India accounted for 23% and Bangladesh for 14%. Vietnam, Indonesia, Thailand and Turkey were other major destinations for Australian cotton.

Exports from Brazil Expected to Decline

Production in Brazil is projected to increase by 3% in 2017/18 to 1.6 million tons as a result of higher domestic prices and a relatively weak Brazilian real. However, production is still below the record output of 2 million tons achieved in 2010/11, when one million tons were exported. Brazilian cotton exports are projected at around 700,000 tons in 2017/18 (up by 80,000 tons). Brazil will be the fifth largest exporter during 2017/18, accounting for 8% of world exports. In 2016/17, Indonesia accounted for 20% of exports from Brazil, while Turkey and Vietnam accounted for 14% each. Korea, Bangladesh, China, Malaysia, Pakistan, Thailand and Taiwan account for most of the remaining volume.

Exports from Uzbekistan Decline

Production in Uzbekistan is projected little changed at about 800,000 tons in 2017/18. The share of cotton directed to domestic mills continues to increase as investments in the spinning sector of Uzbekistan continue to grow, benefiting from discounted (by 20%) supplies of Uzbek cotton and rising demand for cotton yarn from China, Russia and other markets. It is estimated that close to 50% of production is consumed domestically. Exports by Uzbekistan in 2017/18 are projected to decline to 370,000 tons. Bangladesh and China are major destinations for cotton from Uzbekistan. Smaller volumes are exported to Turkey and Iran.

World Extra-fine Exports Stable

World extra-fine cotton production is projected to decline moderately by 3% during 2017/18 to 480,000 tons in response to the lower ratio of extra-fine prices to upland cotton at the time of planting for both crops. Most of the decrease will take place in China. Consumption of extra-fine cotton in producing countries is projected to increase moderately, by 2% in 2017/18 to an estimated 340,000 tons, with most of the increase in China. Exports of extra-fine cotton are projected stable at 220,000 tons, with a slight decrease in shipments from China.

Biotech Cotton Dominates Trade

Biotech cotton production remains large. Based on officially reported data, biotech cotton accounted for 20% of world area, 28% of world production and 33% of world exports in 2002/03. In 2016/17, it is estimated that biotech cotton accounted for 66% of world area, 70% of world production, and 65% of exports. World exports of biotech cotton are estimated based on production shares in exporting countries. The largest exporters of biotech cotton are USA, India, Australia and Brazil.

The share of biotech cotton in textiles traded in all markets is clearly rising and now exceeds two-thirds of production. There are no price differentials between biotech and non-biotech cotton fiber or textiles containing biotech and non-biotech cotton. No evidence exists of rejection or price discrimination against biotech cotton or of price premiums for non-biotech cotton, in any segment of the market or region. In practice, markets do not generally identify biotech cotton content, but rather evaluate cotton properties based on quality characteristics.

For example, a comparison of long-term price ratios of medium grades of U.S. Memphis/Orleans/Texas and Benin Bela quotes to the Cotlook A Index indicates that, most of the time, US (biotech) cotton enjoys an equal or higher premium to the A Index compared with (non-biotech) cotton from Benin. Although other factors, such as contamination or a lack of HVI data, may limit the premium for Benin cotton, US cotton is not sold at a discount. It also seems that the introduction of biotech cotton in Burkina Faso in 2008/09 did not lead to reduce premiums.

Premiums paid for Indian cotton (90% of which is biotech) showed a similar trend to Burkina Faso. Analyses of quotes for Australian and Brazilian middling 1-1/32" (both countries are planting biotech cotton) indicate that these growths (when quoted) enjoyed high premiums to the A Index during the past ten seasons.

* The top number in each row equals the quantity of raw cotton exporters report having shipped to each importer. The bottom number in each row equals the quantity importers report having received from each exporter. For example, in 1984/85, Argentina reports exports to China (Taiwan) of 20,730 tons; China (Taiwan) reports imports from Argentina of 19,740 tons. Imports may differ from exports for a given season because of time spent in transit, changes in the weight of cotton during shipment, transshipment through third countries and errors in record keeping.

1/ Data on exports by Paraguay and Zimbabwe during 1984/85 are not available.

* The top number in each row equals the quantity of raw cotton exporters report having shipped to each importer. The bottom number in each row equals the quantity importers report having received from each exporter. For example, in 1985/86, Argentina reports exports to China (Taiwan) of 4,080 tons; China (Taiwan) reports imports from Argentina of 7,580 tons. Imports may differ from exports in a given season because of time spent in transit; changes in the weight of cotton during shipment, transshipment through third countries and errors in record keeping.

1/ Central Asian exports outside the former USSR.

* The top number in each row equals the quantity of raw cotton exporters report having shipped to each importer. The bottom number in each row equals the quantity importers report having received from each exporter. For example, in 1993/94, Australia reports exports to Japan of 127,530 tons; Japan reports imports from Australia of 122,000 tons. Imports may differ from exports in a given season because of time spent in transit, changes in the weight of cotton during shipment, transshipment through third countries and errors in record keeping.
